

Extended Learning is a monthly education class for Tualatin River Refuge staff and volunteers. The goal of this program is to provide ongoing opportunities to learn about the many layers of conservation and environmental education. Speakers are invited to talk about any topic related to the environment.

The purpose of the Extended Learning Group is to broaden our nature knowledge with fellow volunteers. To help us all keep up with the information out there, we're gathering every month to do some 'deeper thinking'. Each month there will be a different session leader who will prepare a short presentation and facilitate some discussion about the topic afterward.
